» Rajalakshmi Institutions, VHS ink pact

CHENNAI: Rajalakshmi group of Institutions (RI) and health care provider Voluntary Health Services (VHS) signed an MoU on Thursday to explore areas of mutual cooperation in Biomedical Engineering and Health Care. RI and VHS will share knowledge and skills and the MoU would help the UG and PG Biomedical Engineering students of Rajalakshmi Engineering College and Rajalakshmi Institute of Technology to use the facilities in VHS to understand the application of medical equipments in hospitals, biomedical waste management, hospital information system, among other things. The MoU was signed by Dr Thangam Menganathan, Chairperson, Rajalakshmi Institutions and Dr S Suresh, Secretary, VHS. The second and third year students would do a 2-week internship at VHS. The academic excellence of the faculty and students of the department of Rajalakshmi Group of Institutions will be useful in automating the hospital process and calibrating the medical equipment.
